Welcome to RX BLOG

You want to be the member of this blog?

First of all, navigate on the navbar and click register link to create your own account

With your first name, last name, username, email, password and confirm password

After creating your account, use your username and password to login

Congratulation, now you can add your post

To add your post, click on new post link write the title of your post, write the content of your post and upload the image of your choice related to your post

To read the details of any post click on read more button here you will be able to like post and comment on any post but make sure you logged in to have all access to like post and comment on post even for replying on any comment, you login first unless you will not be able to do that.

For your own post when you are on post-detail page you will be able to update your post and you will be able to delete your post. Just click update button and delete button below.

With search box you can type any author name of your choice to filter his/her posts, you can search by typing any title of your choice and you can search by typing any content you want.

By clicking on your username on the navbar link, you can update all your personal information

And always remember to logout for your account information security

Click forgot password when you lost the password and change it with another one.

RX BLOG share it with us